

A detailed historical illustration of a Native American village. The scene is divided into several areas, each labeled with a letter. In the upper left, there are several arched, thatched-roof dwellings (A). To the right, a large field of corn is shown (G). In the center, a group of people are gathered around a long table, possibly preparing food or a craft (D). To the right of this, a large, rectangular field of corn is shown (H). In the lower left, a large fire is burning (B). In the lower right, a group of people are playing a game in a circular area (C). The background shows more dwellings and a river. The overall scene depicts a thriving Native American community.

First People

The Early Indians of Virginia

SECOND EDITION

Keith Egloff & Deborah Woodward